

New Solid Energy management appointments

19 January 2004 - Solid Energy chief executive, Dr Don Elder, has announced three new senior management appointments.

Barry Bragg has been appointed to the new post of chief operating officer, with responsibility for leading and managing all coal mining, distribution and marketing operations. Mr Bragg, formerly general manager of the export division, will continue to oversee the company's international operations.

Steve Riddell, previously general manager, Solid Energy South, becomes general manager, business development with specific responsibility for customer management, coal industry issues and coal resource identification and procurement.

Andy Matheson, previously marketing director, is appointed general manager, energy developments, leading the development of new energy opportunities